The large space at the corner of Queen and Fort streets, the old Hudson Bay premises, has been cleared up and exeavations for the foundations of a large brick building on the Queen street line have already commenced. There is still the usual amount of building going on in other parts of town.

uring the week the Jane A. Palkinburg and the new beleanting W. G. Irwin have arrived from San Froncisco with assorted cargoes, the latter very lightly loaded. The steamer City of New York arrived from he colonies on Tuesday A.M. and sailed for the coast at 6 r M., carrying a large cargo of sugar and other products valued at $55,143. The Monitor and Jenny Pitts have also arrived with full carross of lumber.

The brigantine Surprise, which sailed from here on the 27th inst, with a rargo valued at $12,648 was strock by a heavy sea when of the western end of this island sich shuttered her upper works forward and let in the water. The vessel was headed for Kanal and anchored in smooth water off Eleele. The cargo was insured. The bark Cheshire from New York with a cargo of ine anxiously looked for by one merchants. The Kale rum Breemen is also overdue.

DIED.

BECKWITH - Died in Honolulu, July 5th, Macmoz B. Beckwith, Esq., aged 56. The deceased was a native of Great Barrington, Mass., and was a member of Brown University, R. L. when invited to come hither and take charge of the Royal School in 1835. He was and take charge of the Royal School in 1855. He was engaged ten years in that school, and then taught for some years a private school; but in 1870 the Board of Education built the Fort Street School House, where he taught until 1878, when he removed to Makawao. Matt. On account of an affection of the lungs he came to Honoriu, a few weeks ago, and never returned. His discass rapidly progressed. He leaves a widow and three children to mourn his death. In all the relations of life, he was much esteemed and highly respected. His Christian character was most marked and decided. As a member of Fort Street Church, his influence was most heighti and salutary. On his removal to Makawao he became the Deacon of the newly organized Foreign Church, of which the Rev. Mr. Rouse is Pastor. His death will be much lamented by all his friends and Christian associates.

Experience bought is said to be better than experience taught, and we doubt not that this experience will be laid. to heart by all in the community official or not; let us now then as we said before be thank-

THE question of qualification for the important post of Chief Justice of this Kingdom is a very serious one to have to decide upon, more especially as the available talent is very limited as to number of the members of the bar having sufficient standing and experience to qualify them for the incumbency of what may without exaggeration be termed announcement referred to her. The Chancellor himself has been for some years past in end came as an unexpected blow. It was hoped that his health might be renovated by a tour in Europe, which was accordingly undertaken, but without notable improvement. Latterly the condition of Mrs. Harris and the cares of his office told upon his strength, though he was driven into town and transacted business on the day before his death.

On Saturday Mr. Harris was unable to attend at the breakfast table and appeared restless and uneasy. He rose however as usual, but kept moving about from chair to sofa, to his bammock, and finally lay down dressed on his bed. Though still striving against illness and seemingly cheerful in conversation, he complained of severe pain at the back of ness of the extremities. The symptoms alarmed Miss Harris and Mrs., Allen who sent a message for Dr. McGrew ; though Mr. Harris had said that there was no occasion for doing so, attributing his suffering to indigestion.

Presently Mr. Harris asked if it were or answered in the affirmative, for said he, "they are very cold." Hot water bottles had been already applied; he still conversed with Col, and Mrs. Allen in a cheerful manner when suddenly with three short gasps he expired at about 3:30 PM.

The sudden death of a man so prominent in judicial, political and social circles causes a great gap which cannot readily be filled. A man of great determination, when he took up an opinion it was difficult to shake it. Otten times he came into collision with the ideas and desires of others, as every public man must, and his was a long and eventful public career, but all parties will agree in regretting the loss of so strong and able a public officer.

TOPICS OF THE DAY.

WE publish elsewhere some extracts from a letter of a Doctor in Hawaii relative to the extraordinary disease which is becoming so frequent a nongst the Chinese laborers on some of the plantations there. The Dr. describes the symptoms and the probable causes. Both seem to us to be very similar to those of scurvy, viz: the causes are put down as unwholesome food, scarcity or absence of vege-table diet, want of wholesome dwellings, and the effects swelled-legs and gradual paralysis. The same disease, induced by similar condi-tions of living has appeared in Mani and Kanai, and has been very widely spread amongst the Chinamen working on the railway in the mountainous districts of British Columbia, where there have been a very large different parts of the city. The first outbreak was at Surry Hills. All the cases discovered have been closely quarantined and every ef-fort will be made to stamp the disease out before it will have a chance to spread. The first such a condition that his symptoms gave se- case reported took the people of Sydney by rious anxiety to his friends, but so sudden an surprise. The authorities of Auckland, in consequence of the outbreak, refused to allow the City of New York on ber last trip up to land at the wharf, thus disappointing a number of consignees in this city.

On Monday last, the Fourth of July, the one bundred and fifth anniversary of American Independence was celebrated with greater eviat than we have seen here for several years At day break a salute was fired from a battery at Fisherman's Point, and the church and firemen's bells proclaimed the dawning of the holiday. The "Antiques and Horribles" began to muster in Brewer's yard at the back of H. May & Co.'s store, and soon after 6 % clock moved off, led by two blacke ed imps on donkeys, followed by a tall figure it flame color from the tip of his comical cap to the tips of his pointed shoes, mounted on a tall horse and marshalling the procession with the the neck and across the chest and of chilli- aid of a long sword. After these came number of masquers wearing a great variety of burlesque costumes, some on horses, some on donkeys, in buggies, or on foot; of the latter, Uncle Sam on the back of his wife, was the most ingenious. An allegorical figure of Liberty, personified by the gentus of America, was mounted on a high platform borne by a wagon draped in flags and occupied the centre Meanwhile such means were resorted to, as On the arrival of the Doctor he approved of route was followed out, with the exception of the visit to the American Legation and on return the halt and the three cheers at Hon, H. A. P. Carter's, after which the march towards the city was resumed, with a plentiful tooting of natured merriment. Many houses on the route, indeed all over the city were decorated with flags, Government and Consular bunting flattered in the breeze. A queer sort of erection obstructed the way through Fort and Hotel streets, being placed at the intersection of those two thoroughfares; it was hung with stields bearing allegorical figures of Justice, Valor, Fame, etc., and medallions with por-traits, flags, etc., and was stayed to the four corners of the streets; some hores we saw seemed rather puzzled as to the propriety of attempting to pass it.

A lunch was given yesterday on board the brigantine Wm. G. Irwin, to which a large number of friends had been invited by Mr. Ir. win. The vessel herself is a remarkably fast oking craft, well found and well finished The guests, on going on board, were cordially welcomed by the host and Captain Douglas. Tables were spread abaft the companion-way, under the awning, and they and the saloon table below were covered with every good thing to be had. After a hearty lunch the company educated at Harvard, Massachusetts, and adjourned to the deck, when Mr. Irwin was graduated B. A. in 1841, being the nineteen called upon to speak. He thanked the genand good wishes for himself and his namesake, and for some time taught in schools at Ports-mouth, N. H., his native city, and Boston. In unlike the former, might be always "full and Isthmus to California. This journey was at that time made by canoe and nules from Colon to Panaga and these are the called und upon and in a few words observed that he knew th t the Win. G. Irwin was fast, and hoped that she might always be sailing vessel to San Francisco, and was a continual experience of danger and discomfort.

On his arrival at these islands he commenced the practise of the law, and soon the menced the practise of the law, and soon the law, and soon the law of the law o acquired a large practise, and his activity and subsided, that he wished Mr. Irwin every success, and said that he believed that much of that gestleman's advancement was due to the same sterling qualities which had made him and in politics, and was appointed Police Magistrate in 1851. He became Attorney
General in August, 1862, but without a seat.

Same sterling qualities which had made him for so many years the taithful guardian and affectionate support of his mother and sister.

These remarks were received with loud cheers and "hear! hear!" Mr. H. Macfarlane was next called upon, and said he was was proud that an old school-fellow, and old playmate, that an old school-fellow, and old playmate, one with whom he had been intimate from his missioned as Attorney General, and two other earliest boyhood, had won the prominent place commissions dated on the same day gave him in the necessarile community now occupied by Mr. Irwin, and he himself would be, as that gentleman well may be, proud of having so beautiful a vessel bearing his mame. Several Member of the Boards of Immigration and of other gentlemen toflowed in a complimentary Public Instruction, and on December 22nd, 1865, Minister of Finance. He afterwards took charge of the Foreign office, and was appointed Minister Plenipotentiary and Envoy Extraordinary to Washington. On his return, after an absence of about eighteen months.

1867-8, he resumed his post at the Foreign office until some time in 1871, when he ceased office until some time in 1871, when he ceased the content of the bulwarks, and every one wished success to her and her owners and her captain.
